

Website Privacy Policy

What Our Policy Covers

This site is owned and operated by New Hampshire Humanities (“NHH” or “We”). We take your privacy seriously and understand the importance of safe and secure information. This policy statement describes how NHH may collect, use, and protect information provided to us on this website and by other means.

What Information NHH May Collect

We collect only the following information that you provide to us voluntarily:

Basic Information Necessary For Use of Our Services. When you register to use the website, we collect your name, email address, and your online user ID and passcode

Automatic Information. When you visit a website, you automatically disclose certain information, such as your Internet Protocol (IP) address and the time of your visit. Our site, like many other sites, records this basic information.

Cookies. Cookies are pieces of information that are transferred to your computer from a web server. NHH collects aggregated site-visitation statistics using cookies, but our cookies do not contain any personally identifying information. You can set your Internet browser to notify you when you receive a new cookie or to refuse to accept cookies.

User Communications. When you contact NHH through this website, we retain a copy of your communication in order to properly respond to you and to improve our services.

How and When We Use Your Information

The information we collect is used for administering our business activities. From time to time, we may contact you to request voluntary financial support for New Hampshire Humanities, notify you of important changes to the website, or notify you about new programs. In all cases, we will do our best to honor any user request not to receive such notifications.

How We Protect Your Information

We are a nonprofit organization that does not sell advertising. We may share aggregate statistics about site usage with non-profit partners. However, we will not sell, rent, license, or provide your information to any third party without your permission or unless we are required to do so by judicial, legal, or other government proceeding. We take appropriate security measures to protect against unauthorized access to or unauthorized alteration, disclosure, or destruction of information. Financial transactions are handled through the secure server of our giving portal. Your access to many services is passcode protected. We advise that you do not disclose your passcode to anyone, and that you sign out at the end of your session on the website.

Consent

By using our website, you consent to the collection and use of your personal information as described in this Privacy Policy.

Changes to Privacy Policy

If our Privacy Policy or procedures change, we will immediately post those changes on our website. Any such changes will be effective immediately upon being posted, unless otherwise stated in the change.

Contacting New Hampshire Humanities

If you have any questions, comments, or concerns about this Privacy Policy, please email us at rkinhan@nhhumanities.org or send postal mail to:

New Hampshire Humanities
117 Pleasant Street
Concord, NH 03301

Effective Date

This Privacy Policy is effective as of March 28, 2019.