ANNUAL REPORT • 2017

The transformative power of the humanities

For more than four decades, New Hampshire Humanities has led hundreds of thousands of Granite Staters on journeys of discovery; inviting people of all ages to think, learn, and connect with one another in meaningful and sometimes surprising ways.

Each year, in partnership with more than 300 local organizations, New Hampshire Humanities brings opportunities for learning, reflection, and civil conversation to Granite Staters through free public programs and broadcasts held in 150 different communities in every corner of the state.

These live, face-to-face encounters enhance our capacity to discern, reflect, listen, and converse thoughtfully and respectfully. They reinforce the obligations of citizenship. And they build trust and connect neighbors, nearby and around the globe.

Humanities to Go

New Hampshire Humanities' most accessible and far-reaching program is Humanities to Go, our popular traveling speakers bureau. Humanities to Go features 100 presenters who offer nearly 200 topics to community groups throughout the state. In 2017, we sponsored a total of 444 free public Humanities to Go programs attended by 15,376 people in 194 communities. Last year saw the addition of 30 new programs to our roster, which has significantly increased the availability of Humanities to Go programming across the state.

Humanities to Go presenters include faculty members at our state's colleges and universities as well as spot-on performers of living history, engaging teachers, and dynamic community-based scholars. Each has translated in-depth knowledge about a topic into a single, compelling presentation with built-in time for questions and discussion. Learn more and browse our online catalog at www.nhhumanities.org/humanitiestogo.

New Hampshire Humanities programs are made possible in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH). Any views, findings, conclusions or recommendations expressed in these programs do not necessarily represent those of the NEH or New Hampshire Humanities.

“Humanities to Go allows us to have a professional presentation around which to gear our other programming. Because the offerings are so varied we find ourselves exploring new topics that we may not have otherwise considered. Using Humanities to Go programs as focal points, rather than stand-alone events, has changed the way we think about programming for our community.”

– Julie, Merrimack Public Library

“People from all levels come together and talk. Some people can’t read... I couldn’t read more than “Dick and Jane,” and now I can read anything!” – Connections adult literacy student

New Hampshire Humanities’ adult literacy program Connections brings the best of children’s and young adult literature together with New Hampshire Humanities-trained discussion facilitators to more than 500 adult learners each year. Quality books and stimulating discussions promote English language skills, cultivate conversations about ideas, reinforce family literacy, support a culture of reading, and encourage civic engagement. Connections works in partnership with adult basic education and ESOL classes, refugee resettlement organizations, services for adults with developmental disabilities and state and county prisons. Participants are both native speakers and new Americans.

Connections participants keep the books they read; incarcerated parents send them home to their children along with a recording of their personal reading. Each four-week series is organized around a theme such as “Planting the Earth,” “Picturing America’s Stories,” “Journeys,” “A Day’s Work,” and “A Sense of Place.” In a recent book discussion group at the State Prison for Women in Goffstown, mothers explored the themes in Shakespeare’s Romeo and Juliet and engaged in lively discussion about the play’s universal themes.

Herein lies the beauty and relevance of classical literature—Shakespeare’s words reaching across four centuries to touch the minds of women behind the walls of a prison, making true opportunity available to all who read. Literature offers discovery, linking the reader to ideas and concepts beyond their everyday frame of reference while encouraging self-reflection, and the development of conscience, discernment, and a sense of possibility. And for the mothers at Goffstown Prison, books also give them a tangible link to their children and help build strong relationships with their children, a foundation for success in life inside and outside. ## HYPE (Hosting Young Philosophy Enthusiasts)

In celebration of its centennial in 2016, the Pulitzer Board partnered with the Federation of State Humanities Councils on a $1.7 million project aimed at deepening the public discourse around the values embodied by the Pulitzer Prizes. As part of this Campfires Initiative, New Hampshire Humanities received a $30,000 grant that supported two highly successful events—a public forum featuring Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonists and humanities scholars for a lively discussion of cartooning and First Amendment Rights, and the HYPE conference led by high school students.

The HYPE initiative, founded by students at Souhegan High School and guided by Chris Brooks, director of the school's Ethics Forum, draws more than 1,000 high school students and teachers from all over the state to take part in group and panel discussions exploring challenging topics such as freedom of expression, censorship, and citizenship. Students also develop leadership skills by planning and running all aspects of HYPE, including budgeting, fundraising, marketing, and logistical coordination.

The growth of HYPE reflects a growing national student movement to study philosophy as a way to build the skills of respectful dialogue and reasoned debate. The critical thinking inspired at HYPE improves problem-solving capacity and nuanced thinking about difficult issues, and the study and practice of philosophy feeds young peoples' desire to know, to think, and to reason together.

At the national celebration of the Pulitzer Centennial, New Hampshire Humanities was recognized in a speech given by Keven Willey, co-chair of the Pulitzer Board. Underscoring the importance of humanities projects like HYPE, Willey remarked, "It has never, ever, been more important than it is right now to focus on the values of engagement, enlightenment, truth telling, and inspiration."

As part of the grant, New Hampshire Humanities partnered with Atlantic Media Productions on a documentary about HYPE as a model of student-led civics education. For a behind-the-scenes look at HYPE, watch the video HERE.

FROM TROY TO BAGHDAD:

Dialogues on the Experience of War & Homecoming

Special Projects

A reading and discussion group for veterans & service members

Dialogues on the Experience of War & Homecoming was a 14-week book discussion series using ancient literature and contemporary readings to help veterans release and re-appropriate their experiences of war and return. The facilitation model was developed by Roberta Stewart, Professor of Classics at Dartmouth College, who has conducted book discussions with and for veterans for nine years in the Upper Valley. Each facilitator team consisted of a literary scholar, a clinician from the veteran-serving community, and a veteran. In the fall of 2016 book groups began in Hanover, Littleton, Manchester, and Portsmouth.

This project is based on a belief in the power of reading and storytelling to build personal and collective identity and deepen human ties. Through the act of reading in community with others, veterans discovered timeless and universal truths that provided moments of reflection and insight for mapping a return home from war.

The convictions behind this project are deeply resonant with the mission of New Hampshire Humanities – to engage the public in important human stories and questions through civil discourse and community-based programs. In this case, the problems of veteran homecoming emerge as historical problems that cross cultural, political, ethnic, and class boundaries.

Campaign for the Humanities

Launched in 2015, the $3.2 million Campaign for the Humanities will allow New Hampshire Humanities to invest in new ventures in programming and communications, reduce dependence on federal funding, and establish a hub for innovation and collaboration. We thank the following donors for their generosity in helping ensure that the humanities remain accessible to all New Hampshire residents for decades to come.

Annual Fund Donors 2017

The hundreds of free public programs New Hampshire Humanities makes available each year would not be possible without the generous support of our donors. Your gifts helped us reach more than 145,000 Granite State residents of all ages with opportunities for learning and civil conversations on topics of importance. Thank you for being our partner in bringing the power of the humanities to the citizens of New Hampshire with your gift made between November 1, 2016 and October 31, 2017.

New Hampshire Humanities is grateful for the significant unrestricted support of donors who have made a gift of $1,000 or more. We recognize their generous gifts by listing their names in bold.

Endowment funds help ensure the future of New Hampshire Humanities. They are integral to our ability to fulfill our mission of connecting people with ideas through high-quality humanities programs. The New Hampshire Humanities Board of Directors oversees all investment activity with assistance from an investment advisory committee. To support humanities programming in perpetuity by making a gift to one of our endowments, please contact our Development office for more information.

Endowment Funds (as of September 2018)

The Osborne Fund for Education: Restricted to programs that further K-12 learning in the humanities $1,218,022

The Bickford Fund for Innovation: Restricted to supporting innovative programming in the humanities throughout New Hampshire. $501,699

The Merrill Fund: Restricted to supporting humanities programs in Rockingham County. $227,445

The Humanities to Go Fund: Restricted to partially offset the costs of a new Humanities to Go staff position dedicated to expanding Humanities to Go programming by reaching new audiences in new ways. $1,034,787

The NHH Unrestricted Investment Account

2017 Annual Dinner with Dr. Steven Pinker

For more than four decades, the New Hampshire Humanities Annual Dinner has provided a cornerstone of support for excellence in humanities programming, and remains our sole fundraising event. At the 2017 Annual Dinner, we welcomed Dr. Steven Pinker, internationally-known renowned author and cognitive scientist as our 2017 Annual Dinner keynote. One of the world's foremost writers on language, human nature, and the mind, Dr. Steven Pinker has been named one of Prospect magazine's "World's Top 100 Public Intellectuals," Foreign Policy's "100 Global Thinkers," and TIME magazine's "100 Most Influential People in the World Today." He writes for publications such as the New York Times, TIME, and The Atlantic, and is the author of ten widely-acclaimed books. The Annual Dinner is our sole fundraising event and provides critical funding that allows our programs to be free and open to all.

New Hampshire Humanities thanks the sponsors who made the 2017 Annual Dinner a successful celebration of the humanities!
